Armenia on the maps of the times of Tsarist Russia

There are no traces of a state called Armenia on the maps compiled during the time of Tsarist Russia.

The maps of the 20th century and previous eras, which President Ilham Aliyev talked about during his visit to Lachin region, are kept in the world's most prestigious libraries and museum collections.

Armenia and their patrons abroad can look at those maps and clearly see when the fictional state called Armenia appeared, how it was artificially created and what territories they later captured.

Comparing the maps drawn one after the other during the years of Soviet rule, it is possible to see when and how much additional land Armenia took from Azerbaijan with the help of the Bolsheviks and the finger of Anastas Mikoyan. Looking for place names of Armenian origin on the maps of the period before the Soviet rule, which is not so far away, is nothing more than deceiving oneself and others. Apart from insidious forces, the world community no longer believes in artificial fictions of "poor Armenians", but in science, history, and archives.

Behind every provision in President Ilham Aliyev's statements are irrefutable historical facts and authoritative documents.

The opinions expressed by our head of state about our recent and distant history are statements that have a solid basis from a political-ideological point of view, as well as from a scientific-historical point of view. Due to all this, in the issue of re-recognition of the borders, the issue of the additional lands that Armenia once wrested from Azerbaijan should be considered in the historical geography of our country.

President of the Republic of Azerbaijan Ilham Aliyev perfected the new history in the region acceptable and profitable for all parties draws a road map. The corridors of Zangezur and Lachin, which will pass through the lands of Azerbaijan freed from occupation, are tense on the map of the 21st century it is an open door to Armenia, which is suffocating in the grip of internal strife and fictitious dreams. Artificial nationalism and unfounded territory his claims have blinded Armenia's eyes to see such clear realities. The principles put forward by the state of Azerbaijan and the steps taken are the most realistic ways out for Armenia in the region. President Ilham Aliyev's statement of Lachin is an important self-awareness for Armenia, Karabakh is Azerbaijan!

European-Asian horizons and on the scale of common interests of the regional states. Armenia cannot see far from Lachin. In fact, the notorious Armenians do not correctly understand the essence and importance of Lachin.

In Armenia, they cannot understand that the Zangezur-Lachin corridors are an urgent issue of a global nature that is of interest to both the West and the East.
